Second Quarter 2024

Switching from Saving to Using Your Funds

The fall semester isn't just a first for new college students. It's a first for parents and grandparents as they begin using their Bright Start 529 account for college. Here's what to know when it's time to access your funds, including where they can be used, how to make payments, and what they cover.

Use for College Almost Anywhere

Bright Start 529 funds can be used at institutions nationwide such as public and private colleges and universities; vocational, trade, technical, and professional institutions; and even some foreign schools. Any postsecondary educational institution that meets accreditation criteria and is eligible to participate in Federal Student Aid programs is generally eligible.

Make Account Withdrawals Ahead of Time

Be sure to make a withdrawal request at least 10 days before the payment is due to allow the college time to receive and properly credit the payment. Bright Start makes it easy to request a withdrawal by logging into your account online and following the simple steps. Withdrawal requests received in good order are typically processed within one business day and funds are distributed based on your direction to either the account owner, beneficiary, or college.

Pay for More Than Tuition

Along with tuition and fees, Bright Start 529 funds may be used to pay for books, supplies, equipment, a computer, special needs services for a special needs beneficiary, apprenticeship program expenses, as well as repayment of up to $10,000 of qualified education loans of the beneficiary or a sibling of the beneficiary. Bright Start 529 funds can also be used for room and board if your student is enrolled at least half-time.
